COOKING OIL

Cooking oil is regularly accepted for recycling at James City County Convenience Centers and the York County Waste Management Site (these sites are residency restricted); at no charge. As per 311, Hampton residents may place oil in a sealed container and put it in with their regular garbage for pick up. The container must be closed tightly or sealed to prevent the oil from leaking.

Cooking oil and grease are recyclable and should not be discarded down the drain. Dumping grease, fats, and oil down the drain can clog sewer lines, causing sewage back-ups and flooding which in turn can cause property damage. Crisco Shortening can be mixed with birdseed and fed to the birds. Crisco is also biodegradable and can be turned into a solid and disposed of with regular household trash.
